... and together we have been showing Flat Stanley all the things we love about living in Georgia!

Hiking at Line Creek

One of our favorite places to go is Line Creek. The water is really cold and shallow, so in the summer we swim and slide on the rocks. We see lots of fish, snapping turtles, lizards, and snakes (but we stay far away from the snakes.) On this visit Stanley got to see a baby snake sunning itself on a tree branch near the water, but we didn't get close enough to take a picture. Lots of the water snakes in Georgia are poisonous.

There is a carving of a mule on a rock way back in the woods. Also, there are the ruins of a civil war bridge that used to cross the creek.
